CIVIL WAR DAYS ALONG THE COAST

(NOTE: excerpts taken from the "Mississippi Historical Chronicle" from the accounts of a W.P.A. writer.)

When the Confederate government was organized, it was necessary to choose a president. The outstanding southern leader was the Mississippian Jefferson Davis. In addition to his military service Davis had represented his state in both houses of the Congress of the United States. The rights of the states had always found a strong defender in Davis. He was asked, therefore, to become the leader of the Confederacy.

During the years of the war there was little time to think of anything except fighting. In addition to the actual fighting, however, there was much toil to be done.

The people who stayed at home at first lived much as in the years before the war. Fields had to be plowed and harvests gathered; cooking and sewing had to be done; the little children and those who were old and feeble had to be cared for. But the war brought many extra tasks, for, as the men left to fight, their work had to be done by those who stayed at home. There were many more things to be done than there were hands to do them. Fields began to grow up in weeds, and food ran short. Instead of making new clothes, the people patched their old clothes. Sugar and salt, coffee and tea, and many other necessities could scarcely be bought. Added to all these troubles, the people at home were always anxious about those in the army. No one knew when the news would come that a brother or father or husband had been killed or wounded in battle. The days of the war were indeed anxious and dark for some folks.

Martins Bluff in Jackson County was the home of Miss Ama Ware.

In 1861 at the beginning of the war between the states, this was a thriving community of about 26 families located on the banks of the Pascagoula River. After this it was declared Martins Bluff and was used by the confederate soldiers as a training camp. Colonel James McGray was in command of regiments, that were trained at Martins Bluff.

Miss Ama Ware's father and brother were soldiers in the confederate army. While serving as a soldier her father developed measles and was very ill and was sent home. While he was on this furlough, a messenger was sent to Martins Bluff to warn the people the Yankees were coming. The families who had boats hurriedly packed their money, household goods such as china, silver, linens, and groceries — all they could carry in small boats and crossed the Pascagoula River to Pine Island.

This island was between Johns Bayou and Summerlin Bayou. They stayed there for several weeks, and built camps to live in out of poles and covered them with palmetto leaves to protect them from inclement weather. There were about 15 families who taken refuge on Pine Island.

The Yankees stayed so long at Martins Bluff until the refugees on Pine Island became fearful that their hiding places had been discovered. The men on the Island made boats and loaded their possessions and families on them. When night came, they started up the Pascagoula River. After several miles of dangerous travel up the river, they found a small abandoned house on the banks of the river.

They had camped in this abandoned house for several weeks when a messenger came to let them know that the Yankees soldiers had gone. They made their way back to their wrecked and damaged homes to find all clothing and other household goods, they could not carry with them stolen or destroyed, hogs and cows were killed and some homes burned. This was in the year of 1864.

Coffee was scarce and the price was beyond the reach of many. They parched corn, rye and even okra seed, ground it and used it for coffee. They also had to make sugar out of syrup.

They made soap by taking oak ashes, pouring water over them and making lye, then put this in a large iron kettle, adding water and lard or any kind of grease and boiling it until it hardened when cold. They would cut into bars, then it was ready to use.

They had to make their own candles out of tallow, matches were scarce and neighbors often had to borrow fire from each other or strike a flint, very few had stoves, and cooking was mostly done over a fire in the fireplace.

Flour was scarce. Most families thought they were faring fine if they could have wheat flour biscuits on Sunday mornings. Canning fruit was unknown, but every family would dry their fruit such as apples, peaches, figs, etc. and use them during the winter months. During the fruit season, the children old enough would be busy peeling and slicing fruit to be put out in the sun to dry.

Mobile, Alabama, was the nearest center of trade, and it would take a week or more to go there and back for supplies, and prices were extortionate.

inhabitant of Pascagoula

respectfully sheweth

THAT your memorialist, a native of Ireland, presented himself to Don Joachim de Osorno Command't. of Mobile about eighteen months ago offering to take the oath of allegiance to his Majesty, in order to cultivate some of the waste land of Pascagoula, bringing with him certificates of his inoffensive & orderly character; in consequence of which certificates the Command't. was so good as to permit him to settle on a tract of vacant land, with orders, as soon as convenient, to repair to the governor of Louisiana to take the necessary oaths: which order your said memorialist has ever since had an intention, & wish, to comply with, as early as possible: the said Wear has on his hands the charge of a weakly wife & seven children the biggest of which is a girl under age to contribute to her own support, & the rest infants or little better; he has not hitherto been able, thro poverty, to absent himself from the support of this numerous & helpless family, to present himself to the Governor as he could wish, & was his duty to do; he relied, also, on the humanity, & indulgence of the governor considering the nature of his situation.

But as the syndie of this place is constantly reminding your memorialist of the necessity of presenting himself to your Excellency to take the necessary oath, the said memorialist understood, by Jean B. Ste. Boderon, to whom the said syndic referred your memorialist; who answered he believed the place to be abandoned & that he had no claim upon it, tho his mother had been settled thereon. Whereupon the said Ware has cleared & improved the place with houses, & fencing at vast labour & cost, considering his circumstances.

Your Petitioner therefore humbly prays that he may be confirmed in the property of the said grande Ecore, he paying, & performing, whatever might be required of others of his Majesty's subjects, & that he may not be ejected without notice from your Excellency, as he has been informed that one Fisher of Mobile threatens to eject him, the wife of said Fisher claiming under a descent from the mother of said Jean B. Boderon who had not only abandoned this place but occupied others, & left extensive landed possessions to her descendants, of which Fisher has part.

This Petitioner further begs to be informed if it will be necessary for him to repair immediately to Pensacola or if he may be indulged for a time more convenient for the support of his family & for him to take the oaths of allegiance

Dear Sir or Madam:

Dr. Cyril E. Cain in his book "Four Centuries on the Pascagoula" reprinted on page 181 a letter written by James Ware to the Spanish Governor of West Florida asking for permission to settle a certain tract of land and also for a delay in appearing in Mobile to take the oath of allegiance. Dr Cain states that this letter and subsequent land patent are on file in the Jackson co. Courthouse. I would like to receive a copy of this letter but do not know to whom I should address the request. Would it be the clerk of the Chancery Court? I would appreciate any information you could give me.

Both James Ware and Dr. Cain are ancestors of mine.

Sincerely,

John E. Cain

Dear Mr. Cain:

Your letter to the Jackson County Mississippi Historical Society was given me to answer.

The courthouse in Jackson County suffered a fire in 1876 and the original records were destroyed. However many of the early land patents etc were re-recorded. The letter from James Ware to the Governor of West Florida and his original patent were re-recorded in 1912 in Deed Book 38. We have secured copies of these for you. I am sure that you would have much preferred the original hand written ones, but they no longer exist.

If we can be of further service, please let us know.

Sincerely yours,

Jean Strickland

Mr. Edward G. Ware

Dear Mr. Ware:

Enclosed are copies of the records we discussed yesterday by phone. I am sorry that there is not more information on the children of James Ware, Sr.

In hearing this family discussed from time to time, I have heard that there were children Print and Thomas H. in addition to the William and Lard that you mention. However the only group sheets that have been turned in is the one on Joseph Anderson Ware that I am enclosing.

Judging from the disposition of land belonging to James Ware, Sr. it would appear that he died in 1849 or 1850. One document in the courthouse mentions that notices of the estate sale were published in the Eastern Clarion at Paulding, MS during October 1850 as well as posted in various places in Jackson County.

One person who is researching this family maintains that the Wyre family of Harrison County, MS is part of the family of James Ware Sr. and the Wyre is just a corruption of the name Ware. I know nothing further on this.

If we can be of further service to you, do not hesitate to call on us.

Sincerely,

Jean Strickland

Rev. M. L. Davis sang "Oh! Sweet Mystery of Life" and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by his sister, Miss Marcia Davis.

The bridal party entered the church to the music of Lohengrin's Wedding March with Miss Davis at the piano.

Miss Aileen Tillie, a bridesmaid, was given in an evening gown of yellow masquisette with which she carried an old fashioned bouquet of lavender.

Miss Lorraine Brown, also a bridesmaid, wore a beautiful evening gown of orchid and with which she carried an old fashioned bouquet of yellow. The junior bridesmaids were sisters of the bride and groom, Misses Elva Mae Ware and Rita Jo Walker. They were in evening gowns of soft pink taffeta and carried old fashioned bouquets of blue. Miss Carol Carter was maid of honor and was beautifully attired in a blue evening gown of crepe, with which she carried an old fashioned bouquet of pink.

The bride was escorted by her father, L. R. Ware, who gave her in marriage. She wore ivory brocade satin, with sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves, her illusion veil was finger-tip length and was held to her head with sprays of sweetheart roses and orange blossoms, and her gloves were of white lace. Soviet acci nuke dump

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Officials say Mississippi residents probably will not know until next month where they stand in the federal government's nuclear waste program because of yet another delay in the federal process.

"The Chernobyl event in the Soviet Union has caused considerable shuffling around in the Department of Energy," state Nuclear Waste Program Manager Ron Forsythe told a state energy panel Thursday.

He said the Energy Department operates a government-owned nuclear reactor at Hanford, Wash., which is similar in design — a graphite-moderated atomic plant last month. Federal officials are to announce the location of a new nuclear waste dump by the end of the month. The dump will also have to give advance notice to the area. In the week of May 1984, the salt deposits were rated. The nuclear plants

A female employee of a Gautier store said she took a girl to the hospital after a gang of young blacks hemmed her up in woods near the store and assaulted her.

The woman, who also asked for anonymity, said, "Her parents wouldn't sign charges against the boys because they threatened to do it again."

Seek Descendants Of Reb Ware To Claim $7,000 Estate

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 24 — Descendants of Reb Ware and his wife, Emma, whose maiden name was Webb, or children or grandchildren of the couple's brothers and sisters, are being sought in Mississippi to claim an estate of about $7,000 left by a relative of whom the heirs obviously never heard, or have long forgotten.

This became known here today when Walter C. Cox, probate genealogist, 208 S. LaSalle St., Chicago, who specializes in tracing missing relatives to settle estates, took over the hunt with no clues as to in what part of the state the relatives may be living.

"Reb Ware and Emma Webb are known, however," Mr. Cox said, "to have married in Mississippi, presumably in the locality in which their families lived, in about 1870, and remained there for a time afterward.

"Since the estate was left by a descendant who died without issue, the children or grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Ware would have first claim to it. Should there be no such descendants, then the descendants of the couple's brothers and sisters would succeed to claim, if they can be found, and can prove the relationship."
